Natural killer (NK) cells were examined for cytolytic activity against tumor cells in vitro and for size distribution in normal spleen cells and bone marrow cells. Various cytolytic activities to YAC-1 were detected in the peritoneal macrophage-depleted splenocytes and bone marrow cells; the highest activity was noted in bone marrow cells (95.7%). The smallest fraction of YAC-1 (0.5%) was recognized by NK cells in bone marrow cells, whereas 60.9% of YAC-1 were killed by macrophages in splenocytes. The volume distribution (diameter) of NK cells in the bone marrow cells was significantly smaller than that in the splenocytes. Ascorbate-dependent cytotoxicity was also detected in the bone marrow cells. After treatment with ascorbate, the volume distribution of NK cells in bone marrow cells was significantly larger than that in the untreated bone marrow cells. These results indicate that the size distribution of NK cells is heterogenous among the bone marrow cells. The Toronto Police Service has released the first public account of how a man was shot to death by its officers during a routine traffic stop over the weekend. The 22-year-old man was shot just after midnight on Saturday morning on Gardiner Expy. near Danforth Avenue. The shooting occurred when the man struck two officers with his van. They opened fire in self-defence, the Special Investigations Unit said in a news release Tuesday afternoon. The man was taken to hospital, where he was later pronounced dead. Police said the officers involved, a 35-year-old woman and a 45-year-old man, have been placed on leave with the assistance of the Toronto police internal affairs unit. The officers have been with the force for 16 years and 10 years, respectively. "They are devastated by the recent loss of their fellow officer," Toronto police Supt. Ron Taverner said. "They ask for privacy and we are respecting that request." Neighbours said the man had been struggling
